

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An active matrix LCD device includes a pixel element for defining a pixel area and having a TFT and a pixel electrode disposed in association with a portion of a common electrode. The common electrode encircles the pixel area for shielding the electric field from the black matrix, thereby preventing a stray electric field from entering the pixel area and degrading the image quality.